Wheeling Family Market. We publish this morning our usual review of the wholesale market of Wheeling, and also our quotations for the retail family market. The prices given have been carefully made up, and may be relied on. For the sake of comparison, and in order to show the difference against this city in the cost of living, we contrast with a city like Cincinnati, we quote the following prices from the Cincinnati Gazette of Tuesday:

Table of market prices for various goods including flour, sugar, and other commodities.

Greenbacks and Hard Money at Parkersburg.

The regular Democracy seem to be a little embarrassed by the greenback men at Parkersburg. They are trying, like Naylor, to both harden and soften the St. Louis platform, so as to make Tilden an acceptable candidate to both sides.

At a meeting of the Tilden and Hendricks club on Monday night, the President of the club, Mr. Sands, made an address on the financial policy of Tilden and Hendricks, and, according to the Times, made a "very fair statement" of the financial policy of the candidates.

When he spoke of greenbacks, he was warmly applauded, but when he mentioned the name of Tilden and Hendricks there was no one found to cheer him.

This looks a little as if the Parkersburg Democracy were not inclined to follow the lead of the delegation sent to the Charleston Convention to St. Louis, who voted for "Billsden" and soft money.

A Question for Mathews to Answer. The Monroe Register, printed at Union for far from White Sulphur Springs, in this State, refers to the fact that early in 1867 a retrocession movement was set on foot among the Bourbons of Monroe and Greenbrier counties, having for its object the separation of those two counties from West Virginia and their return to Old Virginia.
